Human Rights, Legal Rights, Constitutional Law and Discrimination

The United States Constitution forbids your public employer from violating your constitutional rights such as freedom of speech and it also guarantees you equal protection under the law. Constitutional law and civil law prohibit employers from hiring employees based on race, sex, age, or any similar criteria. Employers are obligated to select employees based on factors that do not discriminate, such as experience and qualifications. If you believe that you have lost your job or have been rejected for a position because of your race, sex, age, or ethnicity, Employment Lawyer New York has a New York civil rights lawyer to represent you. Do not let your employer or supervisor step on your human rights! Employment Lawyer New York is up to the task.

Violations of civil rights in the workplace are very common, but that does not mean you should just accept them. Fight back by hiring a New York civil rights lawyer to represent your case. For example, if you work on Long Island, and you are the victim of discrimination, Employment Lawyer New York has a NY Long Island Civil Rights Lawyer to represent you; our NYC Civil Right Lawyers and New York civil rights lawyers are committed to protecting your civil rights.
